

Take concrete steps to build relationships beyond borders and strengthen global solidarity with those who share your values. Here are a few starting points. Learn a new language and schedule mutual practice sessions with others studying your language; such skills will likely also prove useful to aid those at increased threat of being targeted. Reach out to other people (or collectives, projects, etc.) in other parts of the world who you share affinity with — Jews and Muslims, dispossessed and displaced people, anarchists and queers, and so on — and see if there's anything you can collaborate on. Seek out the stories of people who fought or fled authoritarian regimes in the past and present; learn from their experiences, and engage in discussions about our current challenges and a diversity of tactics to address them.

Buy, accumulate, or otherwise procure Plan B, and save it for yourself and others in case it's needed later. Set up a Plan B distro in your community. Do the same with other, potentially soon-hard-to-access supplies related to bodily autonomy.

Take time to mourn your losses and grieve your dead — as inseparable from fighting and organizing for the living; as part and parcel of mending the world and ourselves. Set up temporary and ongoing public altars. Paint murals to honor lost friends and comrades. Lean on the deep wisdom of grief rituals that have sustained life for millennia, such as saying Kaddish for the dead or doing shiva after a loss. Make rituals part of your resistance, queering and self-organizing them in collectivity with others. Take those rituals out into your community — by a river, on a street corner, at a DIY space or radical bookfair, during a forest defense or as a direct action.

Don't Just Do Nothing!

A Few Tips Against Fascism

Fascism is on a lot of minds lately, but what should you do about it? The Sabotage Noise appreciated the tips from a recent zine entitled "Don't Just Do Nothing: 20 Things You Can Do to Counter Fascism — Yes, You! Yes, Now!". We've copied a few of the tips from that zine, and encourage you to read and share the whole zine available at: sproutdistro.com/2024/12/15/dont-just-do-nothing-zine

You are not obligated to complete the work, but neither are you free to desist from it. — Pirkei Avot (2:21)

Build a support network. Join with like-minded people and organize for quality over quantity; a few devoted comrades can go further than a large and dispassionate group. Make art about it. Your support network, the love of your friends and family, can always be broader; build it bigger, with care and intentionality. Make more art about it. Try out new actions: talk to people and ask how they're feeling, distribute literature, organize a study group, or put up stickers or disperse seed bombs together. With every loving bond we forge, and all the new art we make, we divorce ourselves a little more from the demons that haunt us — hopelessness, irony, and complacency — and find sparks of possibility. Try, fail, and try again and again.
